

One thing I'm thinking might be helpful is connecting with care registries. I believe family and nursing care (<https://www.familynursingcare.com/home-care-services/>) used to have a registry that wouldn't hire aides but would be a resource you could use to find an aide working independently. I have a contact there I could reach out to to learn more about how that went and why they don't offer it any more. Something similar is care.com.
