¹ Medicare, Medicaid, and insurance coverage will vary based on the payer, the patient's/resident's condition, services needed (e.g., skilled, custodial, or caregiver support) and the duration of services.

² Veterans with long-term care needs may be eligible for a variety of benefits to help them to address those needs. In addition to VA health benefits, veterans may be eligible for caregiver supports and/or "Aid and Attendance" or "Housebound" benefits. Aid and Attendance is an additional pension benefit for veterans who require assistance with ADLs, live in a nursing home and/or have extremely poor vision. Similarly, Housebound benefits are additional pension payments for veterans who are substantially confined to their homes.

³ For assistance with the CDPAP, NHTD, and TBI programs and other non-medical services and supports for people with disabilities, independent living centers (ILCs) are an important resource. They provide advocacy and supports to assist people with disabilities to live independently, including information and referrals, peer counseling, individual and systems advocacy, and independent living skills training. They may also provide assistance with housing, education, employment, medical needs and personal attendant services. A directory of ILCs is available at <http://www.nysilc.org/directory.htm>.

⁴ Medicaid Managed Long Term Care Plans, FIDA Plans, and Medicare Advantage Plans are managed care plans that contract with home and community-based service providers and others to provide care to their enrollees. They do not directly provide services other than care management, although some plans are sponsored by organizations that are also health care providers. PACE programs operate as both managed care plans and providers of services. Typically, if a consumer is enrolled in one of these plans/programs, the plan or program must authorize the delivery of home and community-based services.

⁵ In addition to MLTC plans, FIDA plans, and PACE programs, individuals with both Medicare and Medicaid coverage may qualify for Medicaid Advantage plans and/or Medicaid Advantage Plus plans. Medicaid Advantage plans cover the primary, specialty, acute, and post-acute services and supplies covered by Medicare and Medicaid. Medicaid Advantage Plus plans cover the Medicaid Advantage benefits plus long-term care services for individuals who require a nursing home level of care. For more information on Medicaid Advantage Plus, see <http://nymedicaidchoice.com/sites/default/files/content-docs/MLTC%20BROCH%20r5-9-13%20v4.pdf>.
